The main objective of this book is to send a message to young Saudi boys and girls that it is possible for them to be a productive individuals who can transform local raw materials using the latest technologies into manufactured products worth more than ten times the raw material value.

Newly young Saudi graduates from high school and universities have been able, after a sufficient period of training to transform Sabic from a vision to reality and become one of the leading petrochemical companies in the world.

It is my pleasure to have this book document the achievement of the founding and present employees of Sabic.

Moreover, it is my pleasure to have this book document the achievement of those who worked with me in the electricity sector and were able to transform the sector to become one of the best in terms of reliability and coverage of service.

My full appreciation to the entrepreneurs of small, medium and large industries in the field of consumer and downstream products whose efforts has resulted in making Saudi Arabia self sufficient in many products and many of those products were exported worldwide.

I will never forget my dear wife Hessa Al-Bassam and our sons and daughters, Osama, Sattam, Modawi, Roqya, Ahmed and Omar who supported me with love and affection that enabled me to fulfil my duties towards my country. To all of them I am forever grateful.

Finally my full appreciation to my father, mothers, brothers and sisters for all, the great things they have done to me in my life.
